

the way out

Finally,

We sorted out the big things:

We cured cancer,

Fed the hungry,

Clothed the naked.

We found a home for everyone.

"you once were big,

but now you are small."

way out, issue 5.

lunar new year, 2013.

rob currie

small things

rahul dev

the first hamster in space

mattias darrow

pilgrims to the hidden land

scavenger priest

the electric wizard comes to wastes

kwk

34

david corns

party people

john zahorian

welcome to washington (excerpt)

pg (e-version)

2, 4
poetry

5-8
comic

9-11
drawings

12-14
prose

15-17
drawings

18-24
photos

And so,

All that was left were the small things:

We went to war over the menu

Of our celebratory dinner.

The right flavour,

The perfect song,

Where to put the statue of ourselves...

small things

rob currie

the first hamster in space

rahul dev

(flip your viewers now)

Humans used to be the only ones who explored space...

... but that was back when
they still existed.

I am...

THE FIRST
HAMSTER IN SPACE!

Discovering brand
new worlds...

The first planet
I visited...

was ruled over by
a giant cat.

Needless to say,

I had to stay hidden
from his all-seeing gaze.

I ended my journey
where I began...

But, the question
was: when?

pilgrims to the hidden city

scavenger priest

the electric wizard comes to wastes

mattias darrow

"Pilgrims to the Hidden City"

Micha'el Du 12/12

"The Electric Wizard Comes to the Winter"

1/4/15

34

kww

CAUTION
PLEASE DO NOT
LEAN ON THE

TO OPEN DOOR
FOR EMERGENCY
EVACUATION
PULL
RED HANDLE
UP
DOOR

"oh are you?!? that's excellent."

a smile creaked across esther's face. i wondered what she would nervously take off next. maybe her necktie. maybe not. it was an ugly colour and it hung like a donkey's tail off her neck. but then esther shifted her weight onto her other foot. her whole body pulsed and even though it was dark we followed accordingly. i don't know where solomon's eyes ended up but for me it was all about the shoulder blades. like lovers on a queen bed. she was the only girl i knew with bone structure like that and it made my fingers itch for thick knitwear and the wet tongues of dogs.

but now solomon had another girl to catch up with so i just took out a cigarette and stared and stared at her some more.
ballmer was on the other side of the porch and yelled some things. "no. i don't think we're going to do that. sorry." that was 3 years ago which was before i met solomon even.

back then the nights got darker a lot faster and in one of them she had smelled like something from a shampoo commercial. she said hello, and then she'd laugh, but not for the reason that you and i automatically arrive at.

party people

david corns

welcome to washington (excerpt)

john zahorian

february is zine month!

check out these neat zines, from friends of WAY OUT:

Too Kawaii to Die #3

“a zine dedicated to the post-post-post-american anime out now!
culture world of cute meets scary,
sad, weird, and dumb.”

tookawaiitodie.tumblr.com

Subjective Magazine, No. 3: “The Crowd”

“... a hybrid between This American Life and People Magazine... a tabloid of the everyday man.”

out soon (March)

subjectivemagazine.tumblr.com

and you can always read past issues of WAY OUT at lopsig.wordpress.com

and order print copies from huliscool@gmail.com

want more WAY OUT?

visit us online at:

lopsig.wordpress.com/welcome